

Only Governor Can Save 3 Slayers from Electric Chair

COURT DENIES TRIAL APPEAL

Triple Execution Scheduled for Jan. 30 Unless White Intervenes.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23 — Unless Gov. George White intervenes, three Mansfield slayers will die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary on Jan. 30. They are Kenneth McCartney, Fred Massa and Earl Siles, convicted killers of Ralph Wilcox, Gallion filling station attendant, during a holdup.

Their fate was placed in the governor's hands when the Ohio supreme court declined to review the case yesterday. Defense counsel had asked leave to file petitions to die early this month but were granted stays pending the appeal to the high court.

Attorneys for the trio said the jury that tried McCartney was prejudiced; that an alleged confession by Siles contained statements he did not make, and charged error in that the indictment stated Wilcox was killed on June 27, whereas he did not die until Aug. 3. Massa's attorney admitted he fired the fatal shot, however.

Warden P. E. Thomas said the triple execution would be the second in the history of the state. The first took place about four years ago when three Ponetoys were electrocuted for murdering an aged man in the course of a robbery.

ASHLAND IN FIGHT TO STAY ON TOP

HARDING CONFIDENT OF HANDING GALION SECOND LOSS IN ROW

Bucyrus To Clash with Mansfield in Effort To Gain First Win.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Q. Will a number of basketball athletes in the North Central Ohio athletic league will be doing their share for the last time tonight, at least so far as inter-scholastic competition is concerned. Not all of the schools will be hit by this mid-season tragedy, some of them not having first semester graduation. Coach Rosie Stam at Ashland will probably feel the effects of the mid-year culling keener than any other coach in the circuit. He will lose two first string forwards and a first string guard in the person of Bob. The latter is probably the best guard in the N. C. O. league.

Just what other athletes will be in action tonight for the final time cannot be stated here at present, inquiry as yet having failed to locate all of the senior stars. Realizing that it had better strike while the iron is hot if the Hilltoppers are to win games and also that the iron isn't going to be hot much longer, Ashland will have to rely tonight on the strength of its remaining players in undisputed possession of first place. Shelby is just as anxious to win the game as the Hilltoppers are, as a defeat for the Hilltoppers means their virtual elimination from the title chase. With both teams holding back nothing but putting everything possible into the conflict, a battle to the finish is expected, with little preference given either team as far as the ultimate winner is concerned.

Ashland has already made the announcement that the usual stalling defense would be set up on the Shelby court in an effort to.

FIVE OF TRIBE DECLINE TO SIGN CONTRACTS

Ferrell, Morgan, Averill, Sewell, Hodapp Want More Money Next Summer.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 23. The number of recalcitrant Cleveland Indians grew to five today and reminded the management that the joy of winning in the summer often turns pale in the winter.

Wesley Ferrell, one of the league's best hitters; Eddie Morgan, home-run hitting first baseman; Johnny Hodapp, second baseman; Earl Averill, slugging outfielder; and catcher Luke Sewell, the nucleus of the club have returned their contracts, unsigned although exceeding $10,000 to $15,000. Dick Porter, another outfielder, has not been heard from.

Billy Evans, manager of the tribe, said Ferrell was offered a salary higher than that drawn by Bob Grove, George Earnshaw and Ted Lyons or any other finger last season. Ferrell, however, was reported to have asked a doubled salary.

Evans declined to quote figures asked or offered, but announced the club has gone its limit.

20 Teams Roll in Sweepstakes Pin Tourney Here Sunday

Former College Stars to Play Here Saturday

College stars of former days will roam the basketball court of the Steam Shovel gym Saturday night as the Columbus Y-Collegians parade onto the court of the west side establishment for their scheduled clash with the Shovel Y-Indians cage club. The game will be the twenty-fourth of the season for the Marion quintet. Hostilities will commence at 8:15 p. m. following a preliminary game between two local teams at 7:30.

The Columbus quintet will have basketball players in its lineup who at some time performed under the banners of Carnegie Tech, Purdue, Illinois and Ohio State. Besides the players coming from this quartet of larger universities, the Collegians have some high school stars of high caliber.

Bucyrus Star in Lineup
George Vandyke, formerly a star center for the Scarlet and Gray of Ohio State, is scheduled to occupy the center position against the Y-Indians. Inasmuch as Walter Lockwood has stated he cannot play Saturday, Chuck Osterholt will probably draw the assignment of matching jumps with the erstwhile Ohio Stater. Osterholt may play him even on the floor but it is not likely he will be able to reach as high on the tipoff. Another former Buckeye player, a red-headed speed demon by the name of Such, will also be on the Collegian squad.

Other court stars who will appear against the Y-Indians are White, captain of Carnegie Tech's cakery in 1925 and '26, Webster of the University of Illinois and Tapp of Purdue university.

The Collegians have not been beaten this season although they have not played nearly so many games as has the Y-Indians club. They hold victories over Hamilton Y and the Cincinnati Wildcats. Cincinnati will be remembered as the team which defeated the locals 30 to 29 in a hard fought overtime battle recently.

Regulars To Start
Aside from Lockwood and it is possible he will be in the lineup, the Shovel-Y team will have its complete first string lineup available. Bill Keller, sturdy back guard, who has been warning the bench for some time with a sprained ankle will be ready to start as will Cram, Roush and Gilhe. Osterholt will not put quite so much strength at the pivot post as would Lockwood but his harder fighting qualities will help to make up for any deficiencies.

The preliminary game will be played between the LaRue high school girls and the Marion Business College ladies. The Bookkeepers have been going at a rapid clip this season and a good battle is in prospect. LaRue has already defeated them once by a single point.

COAST YOUNGSTER TO MEET KID BERG

Goldie Hess Battles English Fighter in 10-Round Fight Tonight.

By the Associated Press
CHICAGO, Jan. 23. Goldie Hess, blond freckle faced youngster from Los Angeles will have a chance to win the world's junior welterweight championship tonight when he engages Jack "Kid" Berg, spectacular British holder of the 140 pound championship, in a ten round battle.

Hess and Berg share the headlining spot on the Chicago stadium card with Pat Battalino, world's featherweight champion, who is meeting Eddie Shea, rugged Chicago contender. Both contests are scheduled for ten rounds, but the featherweight battle is a non-champion ship effort as Shea agreed to weigh in above the class limit of 126 pounds.

Berg recently returned to America from London and had not been in action since defeating Billy Petrolle in New York last October. However, the popular little English boxer will enter the ring a prohibitive favorite as he is generally conceded to carry too many guns for Hess.

Battalino will be engaging in his first contest since he defeated Kid Chocolate in a 15 round bout in defense of his title in New York last month. Shea, always a menacing contender in the feather weight division, jumped to the top rank of challengers when he scored an upset victory over Fidel La Barba in Cleveland last December.

FARMER IS NAMED IN $15,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Motorist Sues for Injuries Allegedly Sustained When Car Hit Wagon.

Damages of $15,000 for injuries allegedly sustained in an accident on route 23, five miles north of Marion, on Nov. 19, 1929, are asked by Clyde Allison Schrader in a suit against Roy E. Brewer, farmer, filed in common pleas court yesterday.

The accident allegedly occurred as Schrader was driving north in his automobile. He collided with the rear of Brewer's timber-laden wagon, which the plaintiff claims did not have a rear light.

The plaintiff claims to have sustained a scar over his left eye and to have received other injuries permanent in nature.

He is represented by Harry E. Payer of Cleveland and the law firm of Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant.

Named by Court
Lulu Heimlich yesterday was appointed by probate court as executor of the estate of John A. Rob- erts.

Given Judgment

A judgment of $225 was given the plaintiff yesterday in common pleas court in the suit for money only brought by Amber W. Sommer against George Carpenter and others. The suit was for payment of a bill at the plaintiff's Shortline Grocery. He was represented by the law firm of Wilhelm & Robinson.

Court Sets Assessment

Common pleas court yesterday set $633.34 as the legal maximum that County Treasurer Bert J. Shinton could collect on assessments against the property of Mary A. Nixen at Greenwood and George streets.

The ruling came as a result of an injunction suit brought by the property owner, in which she declared the assessments to be considerably higher than the amount fixed by law. She claimed her property to be worth $1,500 and that the $1,384.53 assessments were illegal since the law holds that property cannot be assessed for more than one-third of its value.

She was represented by Attorney J. D. Williamson.

Suit Dismissed

Suit for money only of Opal Simmons against Holzerstott & Holzerstott and others was dismissed at costs of the plaintiff today in common pleas court. She was represented by Attorney W. P. Moloney.

TO TRY GRAPPLING

By International News Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23—Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame full-back, intends to have a try at the professional wrestling game. It was learned from his friends here today, Savoldi said he would engage in his first match shortly after the Knights of Columbus charity football game here Sunday.

"Sho' Sho, I Remember All You Boys Back in Marion" Says Famous Blackface

ANDREW BROWN, president of the Fresh Air Taxiway Co. of America, "Incorporated," whose affairs of the heart with one Marion Queen are keeping Marion radio fans in good humor these winter nights, became more real to a group of Marion people today when they learned that Charles J. Correll, who takes the part of the "Sho' Sho" man worked with the Elks' minstrel shows here back in 1916, 1917 and 1918.

A letter from Correll was received today by W. Lester Hazen, local attorney and formerly an end man in the Elks' show, in which the famous blackface comedian admitted that he was "the same fellow who struggled along with you fellows down there staging a couple of your minstrel shows."

Writes to Correll

Hazen previously had written Correll to ascertain if he were the Correll who came here for several years to put finishing touches on the Elks' shows. At that time Correll was employed by the Joe Tren Co., a Chicago concern which specializes in producing home talent shows. Another man usually was sent in advance to organize the show while Correll came later to handle the show in its final rehearsals and to play the piano during the actual presentation.

"Correll was a good pianist," Hazen said today in commenting on the letter he had received. The Tren Co., he said, provided its own music for the productions and as a result used their own men at the piano.

In his letter to Andy last week, Hazen mentioned the names of E. L. Merchant, Fred Scherff, Marion "Ducky" Dusenberry, Carl Danner.

Extensive remodeling work and redecorating of the interior is being done by the Marion Savings Bank. The entire interior is being repainted, and new fixtures are installed.

As a light color of paint has been used for finishing, the bank interior is much lighter. Some of the metal "cage" construction has been torn away to expedite the transaction of work behind the counters.

Health Commission Continues School Work

Further work in immunizing against diphtheria was done in city schools today by Dr. N. Sifert, city health commissioner; Dr. W. P. Johnson, medical inspector of the state department of health, and Miss Mabel Hastings, city health nurse.

Schools covered were David, Vernon Heights, Greenwood and Forest Lawn.

The immunization work is done with pupils who showed a positive reaction to the Schick test given by the health officials several weeks ago.

DeWitt Shadaker, Robert Swisher and Harry Elliott, all of whom acted either as end men or as interlocutors during the time Correll came here.

Remembers "Boys" Here

"I remember very well all the boys you mention and I wish you would please tell them all 'hello' for me and give them by very best regards," Correll wrote. "In all of our appearances around the country we have missed Marion but maybe some time in the future we will be there and if we are I hope to see all of the gang at that time."

Andy's letter carried the letterhead of "Amos 'n' Andy, Chicago, Ill." The broadcasts of the team

Local Firm Reelects Officers and Directors

Charles L. LaMarche was reelected president of the American Malleable Casting Co. at the annual reorganization meeting yesterday.

The four men were reelected on the board of directors as well as Robert J. LaMarche.

are made from Chicago every night at 7 and 11 o'clock.

Bren, for whom Correll worked, was instrumental in placing the famous team on the air. A Chicago broadcasting station asked Bren to recommend several entertainers to fill in a few odd moments on the program each day. Bren suggested Correll and Freeman F. Goaden, who plays the part of Amos. The men made an instantaneous hit and soon were placed on a nationwide network. Their popularity, instead of diminishing, seems to have grown steadily.

Hazen is an ardent Amos 'n' Andy fan but his interest in the team today had increased with the receipt of the letter from Correll.

Polish Hero Honored

Persons, no doubt, won't just who is this Pulaski to rate a special issue of stamps. Twenty thousand of the Pulaski stamps went to the post office here this week at Marion.

Casimir Pulaski was a soldier who became a soldier in the American revolution. He was a soldier in the "Pulaski's Legion" ending his career as a soldier in the near Savannah, Ga., Oct. 3, 1779.

Poland, he studied law, served in the army under Charles, king of Courland, and in 1769, he was with his father and brothers in the uprising against King Augustus.

He commanded the insurgents in the army after the death of his father and brothers, and in 1771, he was an unsuccessful attempt to capture the king at Warsaw which resulted in a sentence of outlawry. He was soon rendered useless in the battle of Russia, Austria, and Prussia, and Pulaski made his escape to France where he met French officers and offered his services to the cause of American independence, according to the American reference library.

He obtained letters from Franklin and Washington and in 1777, he was in the army of Washington as a volunteer. He performed distinguished service at the battle of Monmouth and received from Washington a promotion to the rank of major-general in command of the cavalry. He resigned his command after five months, and the main army at Valley Forge and received permission from congress to organize an independent corps of cavalry and infantry which became known as Pulaski's Legion. In 1779, he marched with his men to join General Lincoln in South Carolina where he performed effective service. In the siege of Savannah, he commanded the French and American Cavalry and in an assault on Oct. 9 was mortally wounded and was carried on board the United States ship Wasp in Savannah harbor where he died two days later, a martyr to American independence.

Banker Is Inventor
C. E. MERKEL, president of city council and president of the Marion Savings Bank, is an estate inventor. He still receives an occasional royalty check from the firm which implemented the idea of the bank while connected with the bank.

Probably his most popular invention was the Merkel grain lifting cart, which saved thousands of dollars for farmers in harvest time by enabling their binders to cut about a similar crop which had been blown or trampled down. Several of these guards were attached to the front of the cutting cart on a trailer, riding along the surface of the ground and kicking up the fallen grain within reach of the cutter. A set of these guards sold for $625. As high as 100,000 guards were manufactured in one year, shortly after they were marketed.

Mr. Merkel saw the need for such a device while in western wheat fields in which the grain was almost flat on the ground from strong winds. He did not think seriously of inventing the device until several years later, although he had a rough picture in his mind of what the attachment would be like.

The first test of the new invention was made on a farm near here, and it was manufactured on a large scale by the American Malleable Castings Co.

Here on Anniversary
It was a pleasant coincidence that Dr. C. L. Harding, of Bellevue, lieutenant of this Kiwanis district, should pay a visit to the Marion Kiwanis club yesterday on the anniversary of the club's founding.

There are 13 clubs in this Kiwanis district, each of which the lieutenant governor should visit at least once during the year if not oftener. Then there are dozens of other duties the lieutenant governor has keeping his club active and in line.

Two years ago, Dr. J. W. Murray, Marion physician, was lieutenant governor for the district. In his talk to the club Dr. Harding mentioned the fact that the day was the club's birthday anniversary.

In the words of O. Samuel Cummings, Kiwanis ideals are an expression of the inner hopes, ambitions and desires of the average business men. These hidden, unexpressed but fundamental reactions of the human soul, says he.

Woman Killed As Anaesthetic Explodes in Lung

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23—One of the strangest accidents in the history of surgery—the explosion of an anaesthetic in the lungs of a patient—caused the death of Mrs. Maude Branton, 45, as she was undergoing a major abdominal operation.

Coroner Frank Nance started an investigation today into the use of anaesthetics in hospitals of the county in an effort to determine the cause of the accident and to prevent a recurrence.

Mrs. Branton was inhaling a mixture of ether, oxygen and nitrous oxide when a spark, apparently caused by an atmospheric static, ignited the saturated cone. Her lungs were ruptured by the explosion.

Hospital officials could not account for the explosion, except to attribute the spark to atmospheric static.

Influenza Epidemic Hits Great Britain, Europe

SEES WOMEN VOTING END OF PROHIBITION

Mrs. Sabin Predicts Feminine
Ballots Will Bring New Era.

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The women of the United States eventually will use the constitutional right given them in the 19th amendment to bring about a revision of the 18th, believes Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, founder and national chairman of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

Speaking before a meeting of the Illinois members of her organization, Mrs. Sabin predicted that "women's suffrage will restore to our country liberty, honesty, temperance, sobriety, and sanity, to replace the present era of intemperance, intolerance, dishonesty and corruption."

"I make this statement with authority," she continued, "for our organization, which has been in existence for less than two years, has a larger membership in several states than the W. C. T. U., which has been organized in those same states for 57 years."

Mrs. Sabin spoke briefly on the Wickersham report on law and enforcement, terming it "a tower of Babel," and added:

"I do not think the report can have much effect because it represents such a diversity of opinion."

Replying to claims that 10 years was insufficient time to test the merits of prohibition, she said:

"I agree with them, even a hundred years will not be long enough to make the American people accept prohibition."

Topliff, Mrs. Eva Thuma, Mrs. Alt, Mrs. J. C. Thuma and Mrs. Raub. A nominating committee composed of Mrs. D. C. Clifton, Mrs. John Alt and Miss Ella Raub was appointed by the president.

PUPILS ON PROGRAM

Pupils of Glenwood school provided the program given at a meeting of the Glenwood Community club Wednesday afternoon at the school. The meeting opened with a song "America," and devotions by Mary Hartley. The second grade room taught by Miss Ruth Artz won the banner for having the largest number of mothers present. The next meeting will be held Feb. 18.

Kiwanians Hear Talk on British Union Jack

The Union Jack, flag of Great Britain and of Canada, its origin and significance were discussed in detail before Marion Kiwanians at the Marion club Thursday by Dr. C. L. Harding of Bellevue, lieutenant governor of this Kiwanis district.

The basic British flag is the red cross of St. George on a field of white, Dr. Harding said. Over this lies the X-shaped cross of St. Andrew, a white cross on a field of blue lying within the cross of St. Andrew is the cross of St. Patrick, in red on a field of white.

St. George, tortured to death because he refused to renounce his profession of Christianity, appeared as a vision to a British band of crusaders in the battle of Antioch, leading the army to victory, according to Dr. Harding. The British honored him by placing his cross on their flag. St. Andrew was a disciple of Christ and was tortured, like St. George, for his belief. Learning in

Berries

"Take me! Wake me! Pound the door! Call on the telephone! Shake me! Quake me! Beg for more! Don't let me alone! Thrill me! Thrill me! Fill me! Bring on the breakfast tray! For I want my Golden Sun Coffee. To begin my golden day."

"That's my idea," sings Teddy Basset, the Broadway soft shoe supper. "For I never enjoyed anything more than that good Golden Sun Coffee. Ask the movies. They say the same thing."

Coffee berries are like tiny oranges, filled with cells of coffee goodness. The finest coffee like Golden Sun Coffee must be sun cured, slowly ripened in the sun as fruit, and berries are matured.

The delicious flavor of Golden Sun Coffee is the result of the rich, aromatic oils. That is what gives it goodness and strength. In roasting and blending the oils are released, mellow and delicious in the cup.

Professional people do praise Golden Sun Coffee. In many cities Golden Sun Coffee is an outstanding leader, using more coffee than any other brand. A pound will prove it to you. At any of the Independent Grocery Stores. The price is very moderate. And you will surely want to save the coupon. Read it over.

Orchestra To Give Concert Over CBS Net

THE Conservatory Orchestra of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass., which in the last 30 years has trained artists for virtually all the great symphony orchestras of America, will broadcast a concert from Boston, Friday, from 10 to 10:30 p. m. over stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The orchestra, under the direction of Wallace Goodrich, formerly dean of the faculty, comprises about 90 musicians, all of whom, with the exception of four faculty members, are students of the Conservatory.

Admission to the Conservatory Orchestra is preceded by extensive training in lesser musical organizations conducted within the institution.

Friday at 7:30 p. m. the Henkel Velvets over WTAM again sponsor the appearance of Cameron McLean, known as the "Celtic Baritone." McLean was born on the 10-month banks of the Clyde near Glasgow, Scotland. As a boy he was appointed soloist in St. Paul's Cathedral, Rothery, his home town.

The European novelty, "My Temptation," and a quartet rendition of "Smiles," song hit of 1918, are included in the next week program to be broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System Friday between 8:30 and 9 p. m.

The first part of the Grand Opera Minutemen program to be broadcast over the Columbia network Friday from 8 to 8:30 p. m., will include the Overture and two arias from Verdi's opera, "The Force of Destiny." The second part of the program will offer arias from a selected group of operas, closing with "Wachet auf" from Wagner's only comedy, "Die Meistersinger."

Theodore M. Tobin's arrangement of Homer Grange's "Desert Suite," comprised of five tone pictures of the great American desert, will be played by the Black and Gold Room orchestra over the NBC network Friday at 8:20 p. m.

RED GRANGE

FOOTLIGHTS ATTRACT IDOL OF GRID FANS

"Red" Grange Follows in Footsteps of Former Athletic Satellites.

A few years ago theater managers conceived the idea of presenting the various athletic idols to their admiring public via the footlights of the vaudeville stage. Loud and long were the walls that went up from many individuals concerning this innovation but this did not deter the managers from their course.

Among the outstanding stars of athletics who have traveled behind the footlights are James J. Corbett, John L. Sullivan, James Jeffries, Frank Gotch, "Babe" Ruth, "Black" Wilson and "Pop" Anson.

One of the greatest of all time idols, "Red" Grange of University of Illinois gridiron fame, is now touring the country as a part of a stage show bearing his name. Grange has played football in all parts of the United States either as a collegiate performer or as a paid professional. Everywhere he has gone he has instantly become the idol of fans. His brilliant work on the football field is one of the outstanding achievements of athletics in America.

Grange will be seen at the Ohio theater, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

As a part of a celebration arranged for the Ohio theater while Grange is in Marion the management has arranged to have the sorrel-top speedster kick-off an autographed football from in front of the theater. Whoever recovers the ball will be allowed to keep it.

A special matinee for school children will be held Monday at 4 p. m., followed by a public reception by Grange.

Bill To Provide Relief from Tax Delinquencies Filed Today.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23.—An agreed bill proposed to relief municipalities which have been suffering from depleted treasuries due to delinquencies in real estate tax collection was to be thrown into the hopper of the Ohio house of representatives today by George H. Roberts, Republican of Youngstown.

A bill, designed for a similar purpose, was presented in the senate yesterday by William Dunapace, Democrat of Bowling Green.

The Roberts bill provides that municipalities may issue bonds for a term of five years covering the total amount of delinquent real estate tax within their borders. The bonds to be retired when the delinquencies are paid or when the real estate is foreclosed upon for non-payment of taxes.

Chic Star Patterns

Practical and Simple

Dainty Bloomer Frock.

Pattern 2047

This dainty model achieves chic through its attractively styled yoke of contrasting color, and its inverted pleats that give so much grace and freedom. These are stitched part way to hold them neatly in place. A dainty ruffling adds feminine charm to yoke and cuffs, while tiny pearl buttons trim the front panel.

Pattern 2047 may be fashioned of pique, percale, cotton, broadcloth, pongee, dimity or wash silk. A light ground well covered with colorful designs, and trimmed with a solid color to match the ground, will be adorable. Fabric, lace or embroidery is effective for ruffling.

May be obtained only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 36-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Jan. 24

A VERY lively and interesting day is forecast from the ruling lunar aspects. Mars will incline to particularly aggressive and constructive activities, with high initiative and attack, but there is a sign of unguarded or too precipitate moves leading to litigation or unfortunate contracts. Those in the employment of others are also under a favorable force for recognition, favors or promotion.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very lively and eventful year, with affairs moving at an accelerated pace, spurred by high initiative and enterprise.

A child born on this day should be keen, alert, active and aggressive both mentally and physically.

SUSPECT SOUGHT IN PROBE OF SWINDLE

Chicago Police Hunt "Nicky" Arnstein in Connection with $50,000 Fraud.

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The police investigation of the swindle in which Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, federal revenue official, said she lost $50,000 loaned her by Edward R. Litsinger, wealthy member of the Cook county board of review, was concentrated today on an effort to find Jules "Nicky" Arnstein, New York confidence man suspected of having been the author of the plot.

Both police and federal agents were seeking Arnstein as one of the three men who vanished with the $50,000 she said she lost in a targe game with the trio in a Springfield, Ill., hotel.

Reports were circulated that suspicion was first directed against Arnstein by federal agents when they learned that he had been seen in Chicago last Monday. Mrs. Blackledge said she lost paper winnings of $207,000 as well as the $50,000 cash.

While Litsinger persisted in his statement that he would prosecute everyone involved in the affair, the state's attorney at Springfield said his office would drop the matter.

Meanwhile A. P. Madden, chief of the intelligence agents of the federal revenue department, reported that an examination of Mrs. Blackledge's accounts disclosed no irregularities.

Prohibition Discussion Turns To 1932 Presidential Outlook.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Legislative development on prohibition today strengthened the view that little or no action will result at this session of congress from the Wickham report. Insistently, comment turned upon future reactions, particularly surrounding the 1932 presidential elections.

An assertion that President Hoover had imperiled his chance of reelection by the stand he took against repeal and for vigorous enforcement in his message accompanying the law enforcement commission's report, was among the latest statements put forth. It came last night from an anti-prohibitionist, Representative Beck, Republican of Pennsylvania. Senator Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, had sought to temper impressions that the President had shut the door on all revision of the Eighteenth amendment by his unfavorable attitude toward the substitute suggested by the commission.

The slump in the liquor trade was the first to occur since government regulation was inaugurated in 1927.

Profits for the six months period ended $2,018,406 as against $2,200,000 for a similar period in 1929, a drop of $181,594.

The decrease was due to a reduction in liquor purchases and a corresponding drop in the monthly period ending March 31, according to H. B. Thomson, chairman of the liquor board.

Thomson predicted the decrease would be even heavier than in the first half of the year. Sales dropped 10 per cent in October and continued to decline through November and December.

At 23 percent of the gross sales to the state. The remainder is distributed to the municipalities of the province. This year the share nearly $86,000 under the same period allotment last year.

The state's quota is used to pay pensions, hospital and medical expenses, and part of the general cost of administration.

Council Salary Law Is Held Unconstitutional

By The Associated Press.
MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 23.—The state law basing councilman salaries on the population of the city was held unconstitutional in effect by a ruling of the fifth district supreme court.

The court upheld Common Pleas Judge J. W. Galbraith in holding that the fixing of salaries of councilmen is of local concern only. The case grew out of the city of Manchester's attempt to recover from the councilman A. B. Endy, after an ordinance was passed raising councilman salaries from $150 to $300.

Under the state code the salaries were set at $150 annually based on the 1920 census showing Manchester's population less than 10,000.

Wickersham Report To Bring Action in Canada

By The Canadian Press.
TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 23.—(By The Canadian Press)—The report presented to congress by the law enforcement commission stressing the claim that the Canadian Anti-Slavery law has failed to reduce the flow of liquor to United States is to have an echo at the next session of the house of commons.

Colonel Sidney C. Robinson, M. P., sponsor of a motion calling for amendment of the export ban and for an investigation of the liquor trade, said today he would comment "in emphatic words" on the Wickersham commission's admission.

Colonel Robinson recalled that when United States officials paved the way for negotiations with Canada which resulted in the Mackenzie King government introducing legislation which ended legal export of liquor, the claim was made that this step would aid greatly in enforcing prohibition across the border.

MAY BURN MONEY

Cult Members Still Dispute Over Disposal of $600,000.

By International News Service.
ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Jan. 23.—A proposal to end the dispute over the $600,000 in $1,000 bills left by the late "King Ben" Purnell, of the House of David, by burning the money, was seriously offered today by some members of the cult.

Other members, however, entered an instant objection, holding that this would be a form of desecration since the money was bearded by "King Ben," according to the beliefs of many of his subjects, in preparation for his "second coming."

Daily Proverb—"Better friendly denial than unwilling compliance."

Florida, so a Jacksonville dispatch says, has experienced another cold wave. Mother Nature evidently is seeking to play fair. She recently gave California one.

Despite an adverse vote of 282 to 249 on an amendment to the British education bill, Premier Ramsay MacDonald refuses to resign. Ramsay has what the late Henri Wathelet would call "the makings of a good Democrat."

After eluding the coast guard for three years, the Canadian motor yacht, Firelight, has been captured. Incidentally, it may be well to state that she had $150,000 worth of fire-water aboard.

The five members of the New York City police department being tried on charges originally made by Chile Mapocha Acuna are attacking his credibility. Surely, it could hardly be expected that a saint would be familiar with New York police crookedness.

The fate of Alvin Karpis adds another to the long list of those who proved unable to stand the pace of the artificial life of Hollywood. Her career was ended by death. The majority simply pass into oblivion.

Roger Babson says that the way to get ahead in this period is to tell the dollar where to go instead of asking it where it went. The trouble with a lot of people, Roger, is that they haven't the dollar to which to issue instructions.

The cables tell us that the Wickersham report disappointed French and Italian who men. Truth to tell, they aren't the only pebbles upon the moleat beach who suffered disappointment, but the word to apply to what it caused the most of us is perplexity, rather than disappointment.

A big city daily says that President Hoover favors the supporting of the prohibition law so long as it is the law, leaving the wet rallying cry to the Democracy. Well, isn't the supporting of the laws of the land precisely what he has taken an oath to do?

The press of Soviet Russia "seems" the Fish committee report findings as "impudent, biased and a complete failure," being particularly bitter over the reference to Russia's "forced labor," but even at that the communistic papers of Russia are not able to suppress a note of pride over the seriousness with which it treats the red menace. In a word, communistic Russia recognizes the report as good advertising.

The President's Acceptance.

The White House announcement that President Hoover has accepted the formal invitation of the Harding Memorial association to dedicate the tomb of the late President Harding conveyed to him this week by the association's president, former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, came as very pleasing news, removing as it did opportunity for further misunderstanding regarding the long-deferred dedication.

A particularly pleasing phase of the President's acceptance is the announcement that he will arrange to come to Marion at some date, subsequently to be set by him, between May 15 and September 1. In their formal invitation, the trustees of the association asked Mr. Hoover to fix the date between May 15 and September 15. This, of course, was the trustees' way of holding out to the President that between these dates there was greater probability of fine weather than either earlier or later in the year, for it was within their knowledge, at least within the knowledge of the local members of the board, that Marion weather is usually ideal during the period named.

When the President of the United States makes an engagement to visit any point for the purpose of delivering an address it becomes a matter of national moment. When he comes accompanied by a former president—for Mr. Coolidge has been formally invited to take part in the dedication ceremonies—to deliver an address in dedication of the tomb of a former president, far greater interest is attached to the event, and this is especially the case when the tomb to be dedicated is a memorial to one, dearly loved, who in passing touched their heartstrings as it is not often that a land's heartstrings are touched.

It is to be a national event, not a Marion event, but the people of Marion will do their utmost to be equal to it and strive to handle the arrangements for it in the same efficient and effective manner in which they have handled three previous events, in a little more than a decade, which were national in their interest.

Another Plea for Cancellation.

In line with the recently-uttered plea of Albert H. Wiggin, of the Chase National bank, of New York City, K. C. Goodenough, chairman of Barclay's bank, one of the great financial institutions of Britain, put the cancellation of the war debts owed by European nations to this country squarely up to the United States as a business proposition which would result in unquestioned gain to America.

Mr. Goodenough's reasoning is that cancellation would be of "incalculable value" to this country's export trade because it "would create solvent customers for American products." He recognized, he said, that Britain also would benefit, but not directly, for she "has agreed not to exact more from her creditors than she has to pay the United States."

Mr. Goodenough refers to this promise on the part of Great Britain as "a voluntary act of unparalleled generosity" for the reason that she thereby cancelled the sum of £250,000,000 of war debts due to her. If he will but pause and consider a moment, he may recall that we of America did a little of this "unparalleled generosity" business ourselves; in fact that we simply outstripped Great Britain at it, for the reason that we forgave Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium the billions we did without first having stripped Germany of her colonial possessions as they did to compensate us for the billions we forgave them. Unlike Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan we did not despoil Germany or her allies of a dollar or of a foot of their lands. On the other hand, Great Britain, France and Japan took to themselves enough of Germany's possessions alone to far more than compensate them for every financial loss sustained by them as a result of the war, or would sustain provided we should forgive the first two the debts they have recognized as just claims against them and agreed to pay.

We can readily see how the great international banking interests would profit immensely should we wipe out the European war debts due us. By just so much we would enhance the value of the loans the international bankers have made to the countries and the states and municipalities of our European war debtors. It might, it probably would, make more nearly solvent customers in Europe for our products and to that extent prove of value to us as a people, but it would at the same time remove the penalty all nations should pay and should be made to pay for going to war. The more easily the nations of Europe escape the burdens they took on as a result of their participation in the World war, the sooner they will forget the lesson which every war should carry, and be ready to engage in another one.

True, a nation can not be censured for defending itself in a war thrust upon it. A nation can not be censured for resisting invasion of its territory by an armed foe. It can not be censured for resisting a foe which threatens its existence, nor can it be censured for protecting the lives of its citizens. But the passing years have served to develop facts which were not recognized—or, if recognized, were concealed—at the time of the World war, which go to show that the aggravations leading to that conflict were not wholly confined to one side. That view has just about as much foundation in fact as the one-time conception that we went into the war led so to do "by our idealism," by our determination "to make the world safe for democracy."

Germany has been given her punishment in more ways than one. The Allies who are our debtors should be willing to take their punishment in a financial way.

Steag Government Overthrown.

France is again without a government, that which had been in existence for five and a half weeks having been overthrown Thursday by the chamber of deputies by a vote of 293 to 283. Premier Steag and his cabinet at once resigned and President Doumergue is again forced to look about for another premier.

The downfall of the Steag government resulted from its effort to stabilize the price of wheat at two dollars. This was popular with the deputies from the agricultural sections, but did not appeal to the deputies representing municipalities who take upon themselves the protection of the interests of the city workers. All might have been well and the government might have weathered the gale, despite the fact it had endured longer than anticipated, but when the fiery Etienne Flaudin, who was minister of commerce in the Tardieu government, called attention to the fact that an effort was being made to force Frenchmen to pay two dollars for wheat when that grain was selling in Chicago for eighty cents and was bringing only about sixty cents in Winnipeg, the blow fell.

Steag and his cabinet being out, Paris has the feeling that Flaudin, who was responsible for their overthrow, will be asked to form the next cabinet.

Incidentally, it may be said that this week was a bad one for governments in Europe, the British house of commons having voted adversely on a Labor government measure. There was this difference, however; Premier Ramsay MacDonald refused to accept the vote as a mandate to resign.

Reports of the very frequent interruptions in government in European countries, with their consequent effect on business and industry, should bring home to us of America how fortunate we are in our form of government, which can not be overthrown at the passing whim of either house of the legislative branch of the government. Were our form of government that of Europe, it would be rarely exceptional that a president would be able to serve out a term, considering the present composition of the senate, without entire changes of his cabinet. Were the European way ours, President Hoover would today be looking for a premier to form a new cabinet.

Germany tells Geneva that she hopes at some time to regain the territory lost by her to Poland under the Versailles treaty. Can it be possible that Germany refuses to recognize the great theory of the self-determination of peoples?

James S. Glasco, who braved every danger as a war aviator, is dead in Kansas City, Missouri, as the result of a slight bruise, received when he stopped his car suddenly, which became infected. Fate certainly plays queer tricks upon humanity at times.

THERE'S LIFE IN THE OLD BOY YET.

Editorial Opinion.

HANDS OFF REAPPORTIONMENT.

In one way or another—and all of them denigrating and undesirable—it has been attempted to tamper with the scheme for reapportionment before the 1930 census. Representatives of states that are to lose one or more seats in the house of representatives are naturally concerned about the possible loss to their state, and perhaps to themselves, of places at Washington.

They joined in approving the reapportionment act when it was passed, but that was before the census was taken. Now it is known whom it may hit, and those who are likely to be chopped off are very actively searching for ways to keep their states fully represented on the federal pay roll. They are strongly supported by moral reform bodies—which advocate all sorts of dodges to cheat the larger states, with their liberal metropolitan population, of just representation.

The latest, and to the people, one of the least acceptable of these schemes comes from out where the tall corn grows. Representative Thurston, of Iowa, has proposed a bill to prevent loss of seats to any state, while apportionment on a basis of population would give the states now entitled to retain or add to the number of their representatives a larger increase in their congressional delegations.

As there are twenty-one states which under the present plan would lose one or more representatives, the only effect of the Thurston measure would be to increase the size of the national house by forty or fifty members. Its only object is to save existing places for elective jobholders and to create more. Its ultimate result would be to increase the cost of government to the taxpayer, and to confound confusion in an already too large and unwieldy legislative body.

Congress should stand pat on the original scheme of reapportionment, which will hold the house at its present size and add or subtract state representatives according to census figures.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A FONDNESS FOR NOISE.

A doctor declares that "an actual fondness for noise" has become alarmingly common in America. One gathers as much by observing the manner in which so many people celebrate events that would be pleasant to others if celebrated less noisily. Six persons were wounded in this city on New Year's eve by pistol shots. Six thousand others probably were firing off guns or back-firing their cars. There was no need for that. The only explanation of it is that those who engaged in making the night hideous are actually fond of noise.

Another constant immersion in the unescapable noises of a modern American city so conditions the ears and nervous system of certain people that they crave the excitement of other noise, would be hard to say. The glorious Fourth used to be as loud in small towns as in big cities. The Chinese are fond of fire-crackers, although naturally they are a quiet people. Apparently explosions produce a pleasing concussion on children's ears the world over. As with so many other things, we have merely made more of the noise business than other peoples have.

The discovery that we enjoy noise is not complimentary to our sanity and mental balance. There is about it a suggestion of adult infantilism. Children seem to take the view that they increase in importance in proportion to the amount of noise they can make on occasion. Growups ought to be able to live down that folly. The human ear in a modern city is subjected to enough racket without being deliberately and unnecessarily imposed upon. Creating more noise is not the remedy for nerves burdened by the noise they have to put up with. One would think that they would find greater relief in quiet.—Detroit Free Press.

Dinner Stories.

"Doris invited only married people to her wedding, so she would never have to return the presents they might give her."
 "Jolly good idea! Why is she looking so glum?"
 "They all turned out to be film stars."

Prison Guard—"Chief, the prisoner in cell forty-five wants to confess."
 Warden—"He does, eh? What does he think I am, a bloomin' magazine editor?"

An interesting story comes from Australia about the heir to the British throne. The prince was riding unassisted through a field, and while he was trying to fix it a gentleman rode up and dismounted. Noting the accent of the young rider, the stranger said: "You are from England." "Yes." "And may I ask your name?" "I am the Prince of Wales. May I inquire who I have to thank for this service?" "Oh, me," came the unhesitating answer, "I'm his dad."

On the following evening there was a fete given in Melbourne. The prince was there and among the guests he noticed the stranger at the room. Pushing his way through the suite, the prince advanced with a smile and an outstretched hand. "Hello, dad," he said.

New Health Perils.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 A century ago Reginald Heber wrote these lines:

"Death rides on every passing breeze.
 He lurks in every flower;
 Each season has its new disease.
 Its peril every hour."
 Makes you shiver! Death seems to be just around the corner!

But, really, life isn't so precarious as all this. It was pretty uncertain when the Bishop of Calcutta wrote that quatrain, but times have changed in a century.
 Perhaps, too, the good Bishop had in mind, more the importance of righteousness than the lack of the experience of scientific facts. Doubtless his warning was theological rather than medical. Calling to mind the uncertainties of life, he sought to drive men to repentance.

Of course there is no dodging the perils. Death lurks in unexpected places and every hour. But science is making progress. Popular education is spreading knowledge of how to escape disease.
 The expectation of life is far greater than it was 100 years ago, or fifty years ago. A half century since, forty-two years was the normal expectation; now it is fifty-eight years. At least sixty years has been added to the hope of living.

Unfortunately, however, in the middle-aged groups, disease is just as fatal as it was when Heber sung. Between the ages of thirty and sixty, the expectation is much the same as it was then.
 While science has accomplished wonders, the stress and strain what we are pleased to call "civilization" have brought new perils. Upon heart and kidneys, demands are made these days that were not common in simpler times. Diseases of these organs are more prevalent than in older times.

How are we to accomplish reforms in the physical life, such reforms as the good Bishop cried for when fighting the moral evils of his day?

The answer to this lies in the education of the public in health matters. There is no need to become morbid and self-conscious as regards such things. But certainly we should not dodge health knowledge any more than we should turn aside from knowledge of the automobile or the radio.

If there are lurking dangers, let us find what they are and how to avoid them. Just as we learned to destroy the mosquito because it carries malaria, we should learn how to get rid of every menace to health.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

Machine Age Philosophy.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Science and invention have brought us comfort, a measure of leisure, labor-saving devices galore, recreational toys such as movies, talkies, radio or toys number. But have they brought us a philosophy of human life, a counsel of perfection for a better mode of existence?

The exponent of a mechanical civilization, the wealthiest man in the world as the result in great measure of such mechanization, is Henry Ford. Does he regard the machine age as harmful? Quite the contrary. In his view, this age should be called the Power Age. Its effects, in his judgment, have been almost uniformly beneficial. Hear his recent words:

"The way to liberty, the way to equality of opportunity lies through power: the machine is only an incident. The function of the machine is only to liberate man from brute burdens and release his energies to the building of his intellectual and spiritual powers for conquests in the fields of thought and higher action. Machinery is accomplishing, in the world, a great work, a work of which the world, or the written word—ushering in the United States of the world."

Not every one feels so confident as does Ford of the blessing of machinery. Like Butler, Oswald Spengler, author of "The Decline of Western Civilization," prophesies a time when man will "blot the machine from his memory and his environment, and create about himself a whole new world, in which nothing of this Devil's technique is left." Professor Frederick A. Soddy, a distinguished scientist, foresees society's danger with clear eyes, and warns us that if human ideas are not adjusted to the growth of science, and that quickly, the outcome will probably be disastrous.

In his recent book, "Men and Machines," Stuart Chase has carefully analyzed and catalogued the inherent dangers of a machine age. I quote the principal dangers, from those which he cites:

Mechanized warfare.
 The divorce of the trinity of work, play and art, following the mandatory process of specialization.

A certain amount of social maladjustment due to the inevitable break-up of the time-honored folkways of marriage, the family, religion.

The speeding up of life—which can not be avoided until the proper tempo is formed by a long process of trial and error.

The creation of a small robot class. Mechanization, however automatic, demands a certain number of workers.

Possibly a greater ratio of mental diseases, due to the fact that certain individuals can not adjust themselves to the mechanical process.

A possible softening of racial stock due to high levels of comfort long maintained.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

An Ohio Husking Frolic in 1830.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

S. A. Farrall, whose account of his pedestrian trip from Sandusky to Columbus was recounted here yesterday, once went thus to Cincinnati, where he had a friend who was living on a farm, and there had an opportunity to see farm life of this period in Ohio.

"Farm people in Ohio work hard," he observed in the story of this travels. "The women have no securities, being occupied for the greater part of the day in cooking. In farming they cooperate with each other. When a farmer wishes to have his corn husked, he rides around to his neighbors and informs them of his intention. An invitation of this kind was extended in my presence. The farmer entered the house, sat down, and after the customary compliments had been passed, in the usual laconic style, the following dialogue took place: 'I guess I'll husk my corn tomorrow.' 'You've a mighty heavy this year.' 'Considerable corn.' 'Well, I grained. All along—and the matter under the denomination of 'frolics'—such as corn husking frolics, 'apple cutting frolics,' 'quitting frolics,' etc."

Farrall attended this corn husking 'frolic,' and described it in length. The farmers and their families came from the entire community. The corn was gathered into a great shock, near the crib, and around it the guests arranged themselves conveniently. The young folks in particular, and the older people, farmers and wives, posted around doing little but talking very much.

The finding of a red ear invariably earned a kiss from the husker's fair companion, and Farrall observed two young Irishmen in the circle who made the same red ear, snuggled back into the fodder, do service turns.

LAND OWNERS ASK ASSESSMENT RELIEF

Protest Additional Payments for Improvements.

F. Strine, representing 32 pieces of property on the pike in Waldo and townships, yesterday petitioned the common pleas court for an order restraining Auditor Thomas and Treasurer Shelton from collecting additional assessments for improvement of the road.

Petitioners claim they have paid in full the 16 semi-annual assessments for the improvement, known as the Hipshier road, which was completed in 1922.

The road cost $30,284, of which $15,142 was to be paid by the owners of property along the road.

In addition to their objections to the payment of the extra four assessments, the petitioners claim the entire proceedings of the improvement were illegal.

Refreshments were served with the play-casting and reading committee as hosts and hostesses. Mrs. R. C. Hopkins and Mrs. R. C. Williamson presided at the service table.

The melodrama was presented before a slightly larger house than on Wednesday night. In an intermission a course of sweet peas arranged as an old-fashioned bouquet, was presented Mrs. Wilson B. Tracy, the "Lady Isabel" of the play.

Last night the Mimes extended a vote of thanks to William Ackerman, a member of the quartet which sang during the intermission for replacing John Lacey at last-minute notice. Mr. Lacey was ill and was not able to appear with the quartet.

CHAPTER 28
Aileen Seals the Show

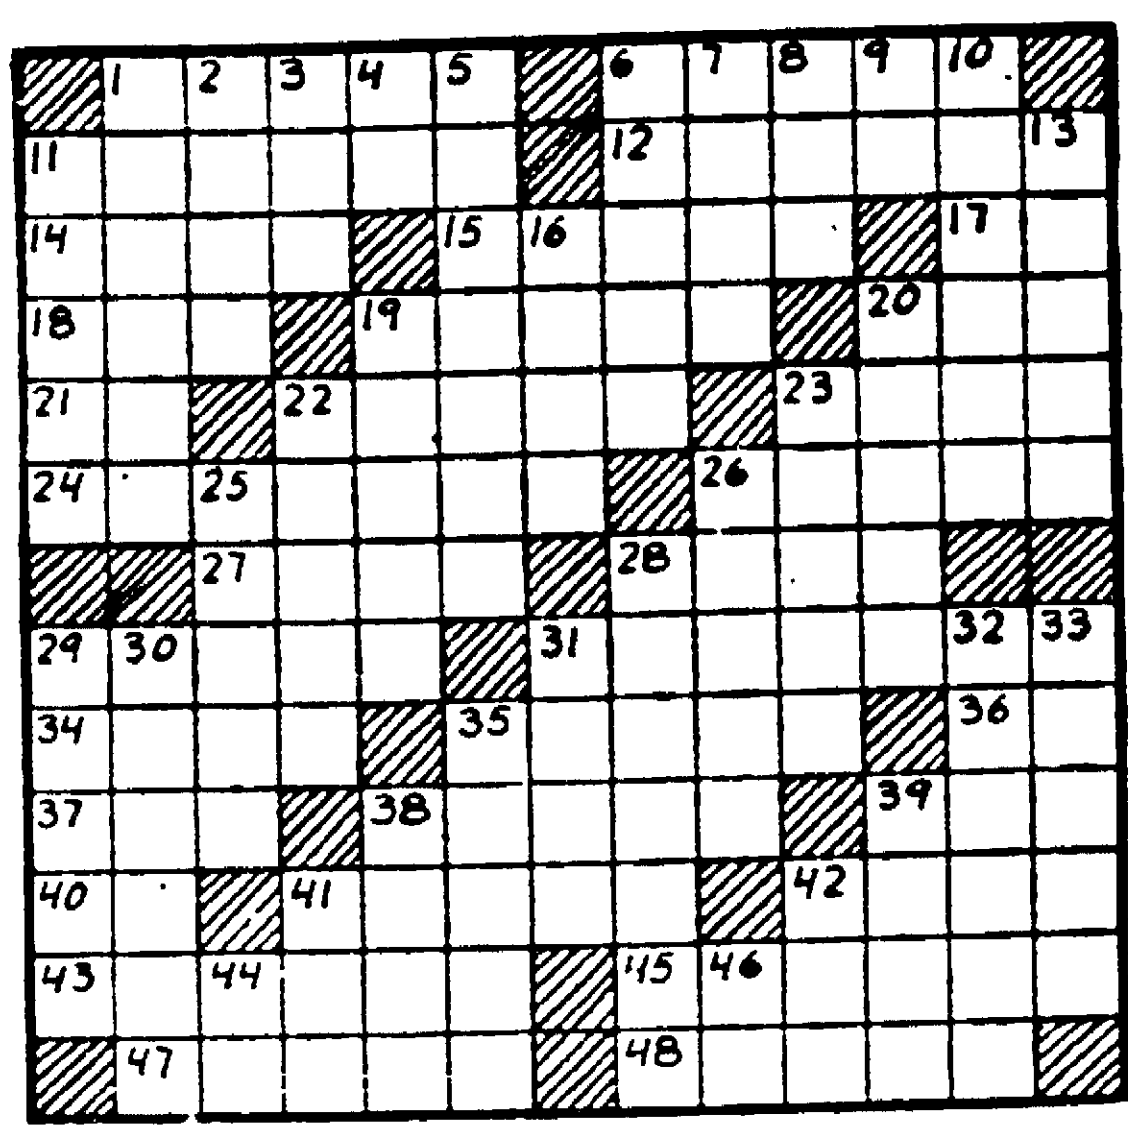

It was a gay little party that gathered at Channing's studio in the afternoon. The room was decorated with streamers and bunting, and the atmosphere was festive. Aileen was the center of attention, and she was feeling very happy. She had just finished her performance, and she was now being congratulated by her friends. She was feeling very proud and happy, and she was enjoying every minute of it.

"Heart of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Conference with Her Father Brings Home the Wisdom of Notifying Lillian of Her Daughter's Peril.

My father's arms held me closely as he listened to my story of the Chinese who had brought me the threatening message to give up the "girl's box with papers." I had fought myself back to composure by the time I had finished, and was furious at the nervous weakness which had made me give way to tears, for I saw that my father's worry over me was overshadowing his undeniable anxiety concerning the menacing message which the Chinese had brought.

"One thing is certain," he said firmly. "You are not to trouble yourself about this any longer. There are certainly men enough in this house to attend to this matter. Have you spoken to Dicky yet—and where are the children?"

I reassured Father. His voice was suddenly sharp, and I hurried into reassuring speech.

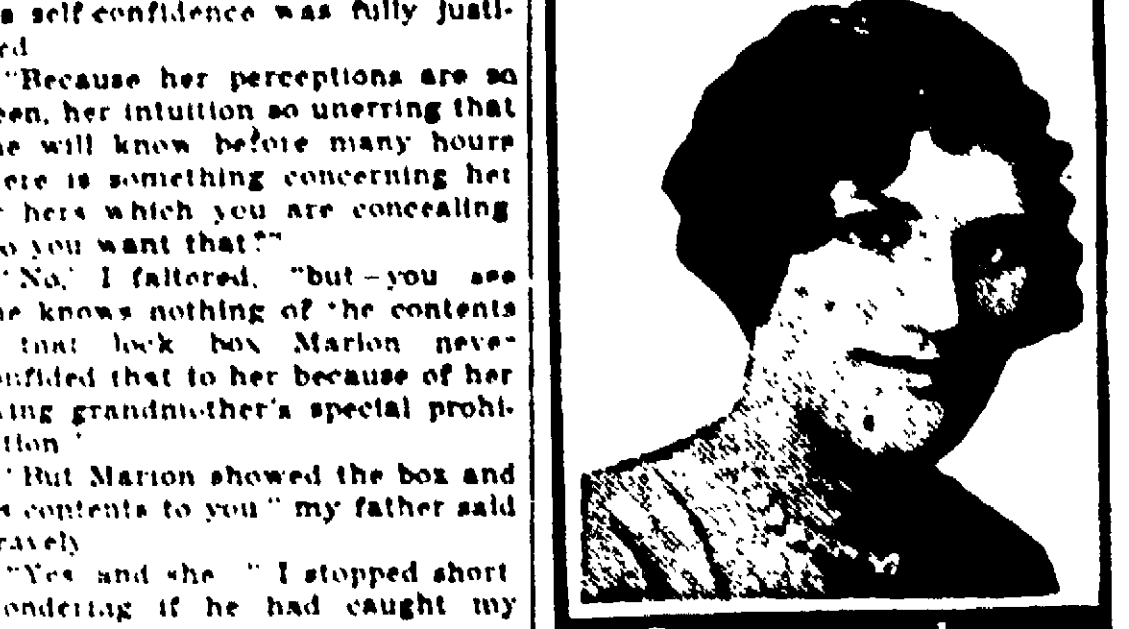

"The children and Marion are being looked after most carefully," I told him. "I haven't had an opportunity to speak to Dicky—he has been occupied with his mother, you know."

"I know," my father's voice was grim. He always preserves the antipathy with my captious mother-in-law, but he is too dignified a parent to accept with equanimity her occasional strictures against me.

"But I spoke to Mr. Underwood and to Mary," I hurried on, gingerly skirting the subject of my mother-in-law. "And Mary is keeping Marion upstairs—luckily they had a lot of talking to do so they are enjoying a tray on the upper veranda. And Harry has promised not to let Junior and Roderick out of his sight. I did not have time to tell either Harry or Mary why I wished their help, but they were good enough to take my word that watchfulness was necessary."

"I might have known," my father said tenderly. "Your persistent and resourcefulness never fail; your spirit is always more than willing to scourge the flesh."

"Oh father, please!" I laughed outright, with a little wiggle of unconsciousness at his flamboyant exclamation. "My flesh hasn't felt even the flick of a whip. I'm really very fit, indeed. You mustn't judge me by those ridiculous tears a few minutes ago. It's just that your

Stenographer Benefited

"For two years I suffered with irregularities, frequent headaches and general weakness. I tried various medicines but all to no avail. I read about your highly praised medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, gave it a trial and obtained wonderful results from it. I am a stenographer and bookkeeper and I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to other girls who work."—Stella T. Calkosky, 2413 Delaware Street, Gary, Indiana.

Ohio Girl is Brightest

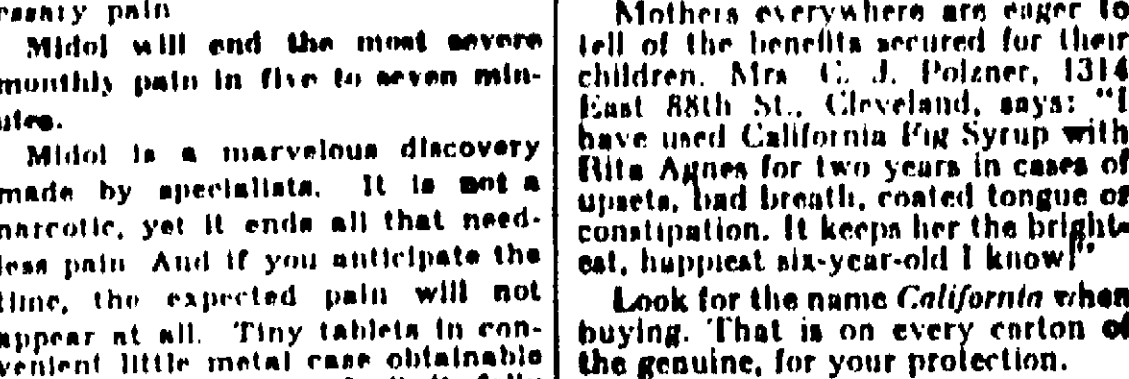

FROM three to twelve, that's the period which is most important to your child's development. And that's the time many are retarded mentally and physically by constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, listlessness, lack of energy or appetite, give a little California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product cleanses, regulates a child's bowels without discomfort. No danger of forming the laxative habit when California Fig Syrup is used. For it tones and strengthens weak bowels. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system from becoming clogged with germs or waste.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell of the benefits secured for their children. Mrs. C. J. Polner, 1314 East 88th St., Cleveland, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Rita Agnes for two years in cases of upset, bad breath, coated tongue or constipation. It keeps her the brightest, happiest six-year-old I know!"

Look for the name California when buying. That is on every carton of the genuine, for your protection.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD M. LEWIS

THIS morning it was cold again, and all the snow that melted yesterday and the day before was frozen again when I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and the wind blew my shirttail around so fast when I was at the window letting him down that I almost caught cold from its fanning me. A fella don't want to be fanned when the weather is cold.

When I had got the cow milked and we was all wondering how my grandfather felt about the first robin, and I had went in to strain the milk and see if I could eat breakfast in peace without my aunt making me go out to the kitchen and wash, my grandfather opened the front door and came in with the paper and stood by the brass burner with it open and pretty soon he began to read, and it was all about him seeing the first robin, and it told all about who he was and how many battles he had fit and then it called the robin an "alleged robin" and said the prohibition was an experiment noble in motive but that it didn't seem to be getting anywhere, though to be sure a robin wasn't much to see, considering that a man down in the calaboose was convinced that he saw a pink snake walking on stilts.

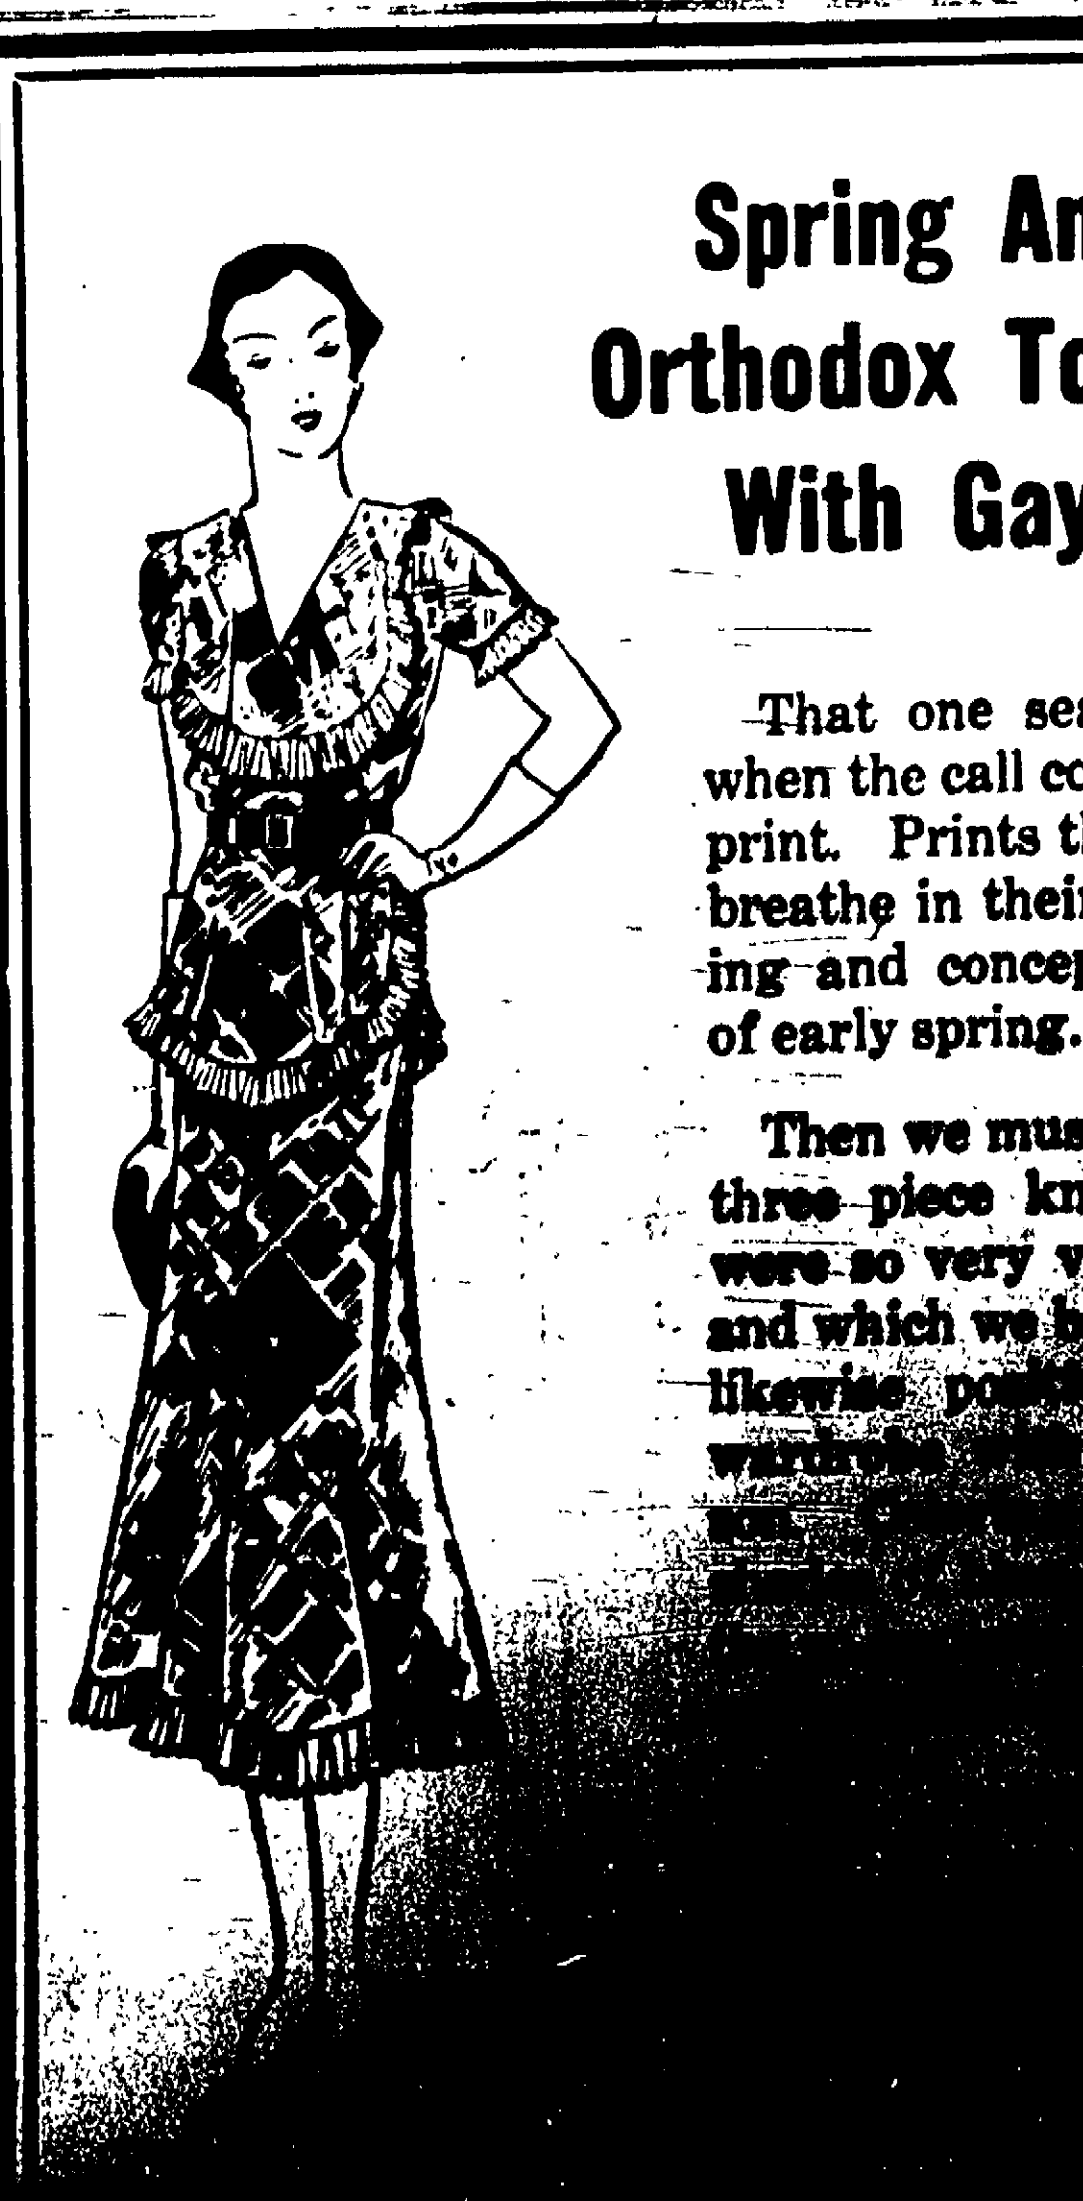

My grandfather got so mad his whiskers curled, and my aunt was laughing the hardest I ever saw her laugh. My grandfather said some young squirt thought he was getting funny and he'd show him that he couldn't sarcasm him and get away with it, and he went out and my father went to work, and me and the bunch was out in the yard and just then my grandfather started backing out from under the house by the step, and his busel was the highest part of him, and he was pushing his flat wheel ahead of him, or behind him, anyhow it was coming out first, and just then my aunt came to the door with a big pan of dishwater, and she knew right where to throw it to do the most good, and when my grandfather felt it he bumped himself till he almost tipped the kitchen over, and he began to say things that made my mother come to the door and tell us to run along to school. So we did, but by that time my grandfather had finished coming out and had turned over and was setting down in the wet holding the stuffed robin that he had got out from under the steps in his hand, and he didn't look like he believed it even then. My aunt can't tell me she don't do it on purpose, wash the dishes and she don't ever throw out dishwater except when she has someone to throw it on.

Today was the last day of school except we will have school next week that a fella, my grandfather, about that.
